Constituents question Langevin

Fine summer weather decimated the crowd for MLA Paul Langevin's meeting with constituents in Elk Point last week, but a number of timely issues were brought forth and discussed. Wednesday's gathering was third in a series of meetings across the constituency, which the MLA said was "not a time for formal speeches - I'm here to listen to you."

Langevin said the recently concluded session of the Alberta Legislature was "the longest ever," with a number of bills passed. Premier Ralph Klein is "taking a different direction," which means "a lot of change in the province - it has effected every department of the government," with cuts and restructuring.

A major portion of the audience was in the senior age group, and was interested in the changes which have come about since the termination of five seniors' programs in favor of one all-encompassing program. The first cheques from that program will be coming out this week. Seniors' concerns included health care premiums, prescription drug fees and property taxes, all of which will be assisted by the new program for seniors in lower income brackets. Langevin reported that the 1996 Alberta Seniors Games will be held in St. Paul, and forecast some spin-off effect for Elk Point, both as regards accommodation and event venues.

The regionalization of health boards is another of the changes facing the province. Elk Point is part of Zone 12, which has 17 hospitals. Langevin was one of many who opposed the size of the region, but said the Minister had made the final decision, and "people may not have gotten what they wanted." Saskatchewan, which regionalized their health care a year ago, faced the immediate closure of 38 hospitals, but Langevin is confident "that is not going to happen here." A number of hospital beds have been closed in Alberta and Langevin, like some of his constituents, feels that the cutbacks should have started at the top, with administrative personnel, rather than with decreased ability to accommodate patients. "The government still hasn't attacked that the way I feel they should have," he said.

One constituent noted that hospital administrators "have been shifted around but most still have their jobs." Langevin said that the numbers will decrease as these personnel retire and are not replaced. Constituents also feel that hospitals should have been thoroughly assessed before cutbacks began. The new regional boards are making three year plans, and Langevin hopes the board members "are wise enough and look at all departments." However, he realizes "there is no guarantee they will look at it that way."

Specialization is one of the facets of operation that will be decided by the new boards, with some hospitals offering certain services that the others in the region may not. This could decrease costs due to elimination of duplication.

Langevin acknowledged that a "lot of concern" has been expressed regarding Elk Point Hospital, but "I don't think you should have any fear" regarding reduction of service. He did, however, recommend formation of a local advisory council which could bring concerns regarding the hospital to the regional board.

One of the regional board appointees, from the Fishing Lake area, has resigned, and Langevin suggested it would be timely "to jump on the situation right now" and write to the board to nominate a replacement from this area. He noted that there had been numerous nominations prior to the forming of the board.

Clan Days at the forts

The skirl of bagpipes, the lilt of a Metis fiddle and the rhythmic tapping of French Canadian spoons played an accompaniment to Sunday's Clan Days celebration at Fort George - Buckingham House Interpretive Centre.

A stage at the Buckingham House site was ringed with an appreciative crowd for the sunfilled afternoon of entertainment. Three young Highland Dancers from Lloydminster, SK, were first on the program with a variety of individual and duet numbers, feet flashing in time to the ancient Scottish tunes.

Fishing Lake's Riel Reelers were next to perform, with four couples participating in a traditional reel, "Drops of Brandy," which they dedicated to Fishing Lake area pioneer Mrs. Fayant, who was in the audience. Their second number was a "Reel of Eight." Five youngsters then took the stage for some spirited Red River Jigs, then the adults were back for a square dance, called by Christina Desjarlais.

Lynne Wallace of Rocky Mountain House National Historic Site was a special guest at the celebration. She brought along a miniature tipi, a cassette trunk filled with fur trade props, a buffalo robe and even a fold-up stockade, and recruited actors from the audience to put on a skit of fur trade days (with FG - BH staffer Brenda Poitras literally 'holding the fort').

Rocky Mountain House was, like FG - BH, the site of both Hudson's Bay and North West Company forts, Ms Wallace said. In the days before the coming of priests and missionaries, marriages could only take the form of a 'country wedding' with the groom asking the bride's parents for her hand, and a celebration held to signify the union. Such an event was portrayed, the joining of Payette, a strong, muscular voyageur of the North West Company, and Amu, a beautiful and shy 12 year old Indian maiden. The marriage was blessed with three children before the coming of Father Boucher, who was shocked at this and other unsanctified marriages at the forts, and who quickly sought to set things right, baptising the children at the same time

Johnson receives fellowship

Lee Johnson of Elk Point has been named a Melvin Jones Fellow by Lions Clubs International Foundation, in recognition of her commitment to serving the world community.

Named for the founder of Lions Clubs International, Melvin Jones, the fellowship is the foundation's highest honor, and is a recognition of a commitment to humanitarian service.

Lee Johnson is a member of the Elk Point and District

Lioness Club, District 37F. She recently received a finely crafted plaque and lapel pin acknowledging her dedication to the foundation's humanitarian goals. As a Melvin Jones Fellow, she becomes part of a growing network of individuals who are committed to improving the quality of life for people locally and in communities around the world. An eight year member of Elk Point Lioness, Ms Johnson has served on var-which has 15 representatives across the region, and Elk Point "would probably have a better chance now."

The longstanding problem of attracting physicians to rural hospitals was mentioned. Langevin, who sat on St. Paul's hospital board for some time, is familiar with the problem, and said he feels the physicians are "scared to take the step. The thing is to get them out here - a lot of people would love rural Alberta if they got out there." He feels incentives would help to attract doctors to rural communities.

School board regionalization has seen St. Paul, Elk Point and the County of St. Paul become the first region to be accepted by the Minister of Education. The new region will come into being on January 1, 1995 and will save on administration costs with one office and one administrator. Region residents will elect their representatives to the new board, which will have one member each from Elk Point and St. Paul Protestant Separate, two from the balance of St. Paul and three from the County. Langevin said Elk Point board rep Ed Buck served on the steering committee and was "very supportive" of regionalization. County School Board Chairman Ray Danyluk also "did a great job." There was ample opportunity for discussion between the current boards and ratepayers prior to the move, which "made the difference," according to one constituent, who added that "the hospital regionalization groundwork was not done in as organized a way."

Langevin touched on the Young Offenders Act hearings held recently in St. Paul and Lac La Biche, and noted that written submissions are still being accepted. He feels the act should be strengthened, but said that as more laws are put in, the more complicated it gets and "too many slide through the cracks - they have more chance to get away with things." Langevin holds the view that discipline starts at home, and should continue in schools with the backing of parents. Constituents agreed, noting that the responsibility should be put back on parents, that teachers have lost the right to discipline students, and that "the kids have too much say - that's where the problem is." A lack of family life was also cited as a major contributor to the problem.

No comments were forthcoming on gun control or women's rights, although an objection was expressed to the use of tax dollars to help finance abortion. "It is elective surgery and people should be paying for it," according to one constituent.

The current infrastructure program jointly funded by provincial and federal governments is "being used for needed projects," Langevin said. Min. Ken Kowalski asked Langevin's input on projects in the constituency, and "they are all good projects needed to sustain our communities."

Langevin was asked for his forecast on the future of Alberta's Liberal party, and said he thinks Grant Mitchell may be the next leader. "He ran in 1988 and has been campaigning ever since. He was ready to go in four days, while the others had to start from zero."

For himself and his constituents, however, Langevin feels "it's a lot better to be independent. I've been well treated by the cabinet ministers [since leaving the Liberals] and have gotten great cooperation" on projects in the constituency.

LIONESSES CONGRATULATE FELLOW MEMBER - Lee Johnson, centre, was applauded by her fellow members on her receipt of the Melvin Jones Fellowship recently. Elk Point Lioness Club consists of a few members, all very active in other activities in the community. Ms. Johnson, for example, is involved in sewing and crafts, teaches Further Ed courses, and serves on the Fair Board. She has been indispensable member of the Elk Point Skating Club for 7 years and a two-day-a-week volunteer at the Elementary School for 6 years. Her fellow Lioness members say she has great ideas and is a valuable asset to the club.

Lions Club International is the world's largest service club organization numbering more than 1.4 million members. As a charitable arm of the association, Lions Clubs International Foundation acts as steward of the financial resources that are disbursed for humanitarian causes.

Kjenner, Bristow families hold reunion

Wilma Kjenner

Ross Lake was the scene of a Kjenner - Bristow reunion July 1, 2 and 3, 1994. The guest book recorded 212 relatives, just 111 more than the Kjenner reunion of 1967 which was held at Frog Lake Community Hall.

July 1 evening was registration and get acquainted over a cup of coffee and goodies.

July 2 found children and some adults participating in games while the sun shone. It was also an afternoon for family picture taking by Blaine Franks and other individuals. Beside the camp kitchen, two large tents were erected to shelter everyone from the heavy rain and hail which came at the Saturday night supper. The tables were loaded with an abundance of delicious food and many goodies for dessert. Anna Ellis gave the blessing.

After supper, Raymond Kjenner, as Master of Ceremonies, honored two of the oldest members present, sisters Helga Vralson, 87, and Ruth Castel, 81. The youngest one was also honored, 9 week old Dexter Hucal. The furthest away was Bertie McGuire, Collingwood, Ont., who was honored, as was oldest cousin Ilene Garnier. Raymond also honored Mr.

and Mrs. Bob Bristow on their 35th Anniversary and Bob's 60th birthday. Raymond thanked all the organizers and everyone who helped to make the weekend a success.

The music entertainers were enjoyed by all with many thanks.

Raymond said it was only fitting to remember all those who had passed on with a two minute silence.

Even though many had wet feet with the rain coming in under the tents, the sky cleared enough to allow a hilarious fashion show to perform, which ended a very enjoyable day.

Sunday at 9 a.m. found the cooks busy brewing coffee, making hotcakes accompanied

Qualify for Commonwealth

Former Elk Point residents Janice McCaffrey and Holly Gerke came first and second in qualification trials for the Racewalking division at the Commonwealth Games in Victoria, BC later this month.

Ms Gerke, who just returned from last Friday's trials in Victoria, said the Victoria newspaper coverage had mentioned that she got her start in the sport with encouragement from Janice McCaffrey, just getting back into racewalking after the birth of her first child, 7 years ago in Elk Point.

The two will compete in the 10 kilometre Racewalking event on August 25, which should be televised on CBC later that day.

Travelling this summer? Don't forget insurance

J. Lang Ellison BComm BSc (Agric.) PAg

Manager, Toronto Dominion Bank, Elk Point

Would you have adequate medical coverage if you required emergency medical treatment while on your vacation?

With recent cuts to provincial, out-of-country medical coverage, reviewing your coverage is a must before leaving on vacation. Start by determining how much coverage you have through your or your spouse's employer and whether you have coverage through any of your credit cards. This benefit is being discontinued on some credit cards, so if you think you have coverage, make sure it is still in effect.

In most instances, travel insurance must be purchased prior to leaving the country or the province. Some plans allow you to extend your coverage, if necessary, while on your vacation if you have not incurred a claim on the original insurance certificate.

Premiums for travel insurance are based on several variables such as your age, the number of people travelling, the length of the trip, the extent of coverage desired (ie. basic or deluxe), and your current state of health. A minimum premium payment is usually required.

In addition to hospital and medical coverage, some travel insurance plans cover various other services, such as:

- pre-trip travel information about the passport and visa regulations as well as the vaccination requirements for your destination
- toll-free telephone number for emergency assistance while you are away
- hotel and meal coverage for extended stays caused by a medical emergency
- emergency transfer of cash from your credit cards
- assistance in replacing lost travel documents
- assistance in arranging for legal advice, bail or payment of legal fees

There are various conditions, limitations and exclusions attached to each insurance carrier so make sure you read the policy carefully and buy the one which gives you the most benefit.

Travel health insurance is offered by several companies and is easily accessible via the telephone if paying with a credit card, or at banks during their operating hours. As an alternative, TD Bank's "GreenPlan" travel insurance can be paid at any GreenMachine if you have a GreenPlan brochure. For more information feel free to call TD's Green Infoline at 1-800-387-2092.

What's your idea of the perfect holiday? Do you hitch up your jet boat with its twin 110 h.p. motors to your 35 foot, $180,000 motorhome and get away from it all? Or maybe you pack into your car: three young children, an incontinent dog and a tent with a zipper that sticks, and head for the beach for the weekend (Are you crazy?) Or maybe you would enjoy doing what we used to do? Take anywhere from 2 to 7 kids, 1 to 3 dogs and 2 cats and spend the summer in an old log cabin, without running water, electricity or any kind of indoor plumbing. (We were much younger then, And a heavy smoker.) (Did you know that if a child is going to be sick they will almost always throw up into a sleeping bag?)

Whatever your ideal of "How I Spent my Summer Vacation," we have seen just about everything here at the Tourist Information Centre (TIC):

- The family who stopped to gas up their truck and while the mother and young daughter got out of the camper to use the facilities, the father, unaware that his family had left, climbed into the truck and drove off. It takes about ten minutes to get to Kehewin Lake, three minutes to discover your family is missing and four minutes to get back to town.

- The man who rode his bicycle all the way from Seattle, Washington, across the mountains, up from southern Alberta, up the river hill and into Elk Point. When he was told that the motels in town were north of the TIC he said, "You mean UP the hill? Don't you have anything closer?

And on the level?" He is going all the way to Nova Scotia.

- The family that was going from Edmonton to Lloydminster, who came up through Heinsburg and landed in Elk Point, looking puzzled. ("Why don't you stop and ask directions? "Because people will think I don't know where I'm going." "Yeah, but you don't know where you're going." "Yeah, but I don't want people to know it.")

- The man whose map showed Bonnyville on the north shore of Frog Lake and was convinced that the best way to get to Riel Beach was by going to Bonnyville first.

Everyone has his own idea of what to do with the summer. We think a good way to spend these hot, lazy days is sitting on the corner taking notes.

What's News at the Library

Enjoy an Alberta book this summer

Michele Duczek
Librarian

I spent the weekend of July 22 at the Rural Library Conference in Olds. It was great to meet with librarians working in small libraries in small communities. While in Olds, I picked a few books for the library:

Alberta: An Altitude Superguide by Bruce Patterson comes from a publisher in Banff. This beautiful book packs hundreds of glossy photographs amid a wealth of information about our province. Noted Albertans and historical events are profiled in sidebars. Anyone planning an Alberta vacation this year should check this book out.

I believe you can never have too many books on gardening. I picked up two in Olds. The first is Annuals for the Prairies by Edgar W. Toop. This lavishly illustrated book is part of the Prairie Gardening Series and provides names, photographs and descriptions of more than 200 species of annuals that can be grown on the prairies. Too late for this year's growing season but something to think about for next year.

The second book is Design- ing Alberta Gardens by Jan Mather, another beautiful book. Growing information on over 600 plants, advice on plant selection and planting instructions, tips on design and garden care, specifically for Alberta. Need I say more?

LIBRARY CALENDAR:
Tuesdays and Fridays throughout July and August: The Reading Rodeo is on Tuesdays at 10 a.m. for older kids and Fridays at 10 a.m. for younger kids.

The Friends of the Library's next bingo is on August 18, a Thursday evening. Any Friend interested in working this bingo can sign up at the library or at the Elk Point Review.

MARKING 50 YEARS - Floyd and Nellie Nelson.

On September 3, 1944, a lovely young lady in a copen blue suit and picture hat and a dashing young soldier on leave stood under a golden maple tree on the George Kinch farm and exchanged marriage vows, with Rev. -- Marshall officiating, and only a few guests present for the wartime wedding.

A month short of fifty years later, Floyd and Nellie Nelson were surrounded by a large and happy crowd as they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at Heinsburg Community Hall. Their head table guests included Effie Dewey, the bridesmaid from that long ago wedding, with her husband Russell, from Whitecourt, Nellie's sisters Jean Kinch, Heinsburg, and Elsie McLean, Whitecourt, their brother Lorne Granger and his wife, Sherwood Park, and Floyd's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Helrud, Edmonton, Lou and Bert Simpson, Edmonton, and Helen Littlechild, Vegreville.

Also present were ten of the twelve children with which the couple had been blessed. Each brought a rose to place in a vase by their parents, which already held a rose in memory of their son Bobby. The twelfth child, daughter Verna Wolter of Whitecourt, was represented by Floyd's nephew Leo Rainboth. Bringing greetings to their parents were: Lynne and John Wildeboer, Ribstone, AB; Irene and Les Parienteau, Edmonton; Harvey and Maureen Nelson, Fort Saskatchewan; Wayne and Helen Nelson, Heinsburg; Susan and Marty Yetz, Alberta Beach; Clint and Norma Nelson, Hythe, AB; Laurie and Bill Muncaster, Ponoka; Cindy and Ray Dumont, Heinsburg; Calvin and Jackie Nelson, Cecil Lake, BC; Trudy and Reg Young, Edmonton. Numerous grandchildren were also on hand for the occasion.

Cindy Dumont read a poem of congratulations written by Nellie's eldest sister, Jean Kinch. Her other sister, Elsie McLean, added another original poem. Harvey Nelson SAWING AWAY AT A TUNE - Gilbert Parent makes music on a saw at Clan Days.

VISITORS LEARN THE JIG - Marshall Just of Red Deer gets a hand from his dad, Ron, at making Les Bucherons' miniature dancers do the Red River Jig.

CARRYING ON TRADITION - Two young members of the Riel Reelers carry on the Metis tradition of line Red River Jigging.

and setting the scene for the couple to live happily ever after.

The afternoon concluded on a cheery French-Canadian note, with Gilbert and Albert Parent of Les Bucherons (The Lumberjacks) coming from Edmonton to entertain with music, song and more. The two started off with a nonsense song, accompanied by Jew's Harp and bones, went on to a hilarious ditty about "The Stovepipe Hole" and then to a more serious song about the Windigo, a spirit who took away greedy hunters and bad children. Gilbert accompanied that one on his musical saw, while his father, Albert, again played the bones.

Gilbert urged the audience (including some distant relatives he and his father discovered in the group) to join in some familiar French songs - Au Claire de la Lune, Frere Jacques and Viva La Canadienne. He passed out spoons carved by his father to all who wished to try their hand at that form of making music, while he accompanied the singing on a diatonic accordion.

Dancing was also part of the act - first in the form of two tiny "jiggers" and then "a real French-Canadian dancer" - d Parent himself.

In addition to the stage entertainment, many visitors enjoyed a ride in Roy Scott's horse-drawn covered wagon, which made numerous circuits between the Interpretive Centre and Buckingham House.

Another good crowd, numbering approximately 85 at one point, was on hand Heritage Day Monday for the Highland Games. Buffalo chips were flipped, while Wellington boots were kicked, the haggis was hurled, and cabers were tossed in a grand recreation of Scottish tradition. Many also tried their hand at walking as a team strapped to long boards, or getting up in the world on a pair of stilts.

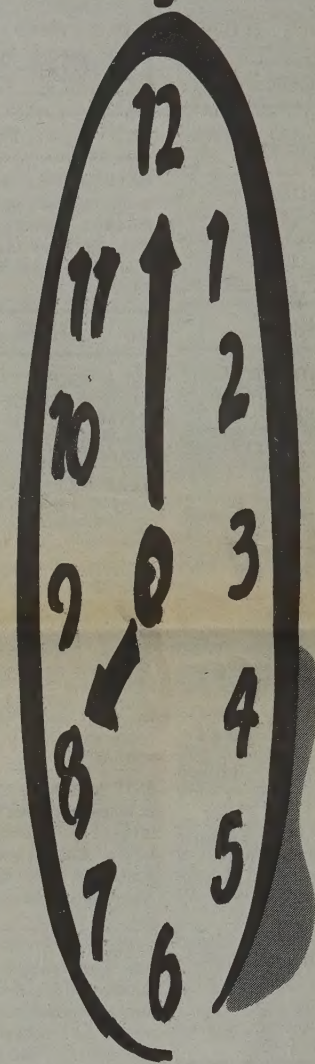

Anniversary

offered a toast to his parents, and Lynne's oldest son, Sandy, added a toast to his grandparents.

The long-ago groom presented his still-lovely bride with a new wedding band to commemorate the occasion. He declined to make a speech, but Nellie offered thanks to all who had contributed to the celebration, and noted that "living with Floyd and all those kids was not boring!" She concluded with a poem of her own, which said that each of their children was special in their own unique way.
